Croft Castle Estate:
An Archaeological Survey 2001-2
Herefordshire Archaeology Report No.49, Volume 2.
Keith Ray and Tim Hoverd,
June 2003.

Summary (Preface to Volume 1):

This report describes the conduct and findings of an archaeological survey of the Croft Castle Estate north of Leominster in February 2001 and in the period February to March 2002 at the invitation of and in partnership with The National Trust. During that period, a total of 453 records were created for features of archaeological significance that exist within the now 720ha of the Croft Estate. These sites range in date from the later prehistoric period (earthwork settlement sites and field systems) through to the structures associated with the more recent use of the mansion, and some specific events during the twentieth century. Besides documenting these features, the aim of the survey was to provide a basis for better management of the historic estate represented by these cultural assets.

Among the more important sites surveyed were the complex Iron Age hillfort at Croft Ambrey, and the remains of historic formal gardens in close proximity to Croft Castle itself. Besides the relict prehistoric farmed landscape traced at various places within the property, several enclosed settlements were noted as surviving earthworks. Other traces of former settlement located in the survey included the deserted medieval village by Croft Church, possible transhumance platforms in two of the steeply downcut valleys, and the remains of former common-edge farmsteads at Bircher Common. Extensive evidence for the development both of the formal gardens near the mansion, and of parkland and ornamental features elsewhere was recorded.

The Report includes an extensive commentary on the 'headline' results of the survey, and a detailed Inventory of sites and features noted. Besides making an assessment of overall site significance, the Report also provides suggestions and options for management of this nationally important archaeological resource.

The next Sites and Monuments Record entry is the ‘recording event’ specifically for this 2001-2 survey. This is HSM 76002. The ‘running number’ sequence for the site survey entries begins with HSM 76003 and runs through to HSM 76454.

The site locations for all sites appear in the series of GIS map extracts, with numbers next to location symbols, and organised according to survey Area. Figure 35 contains all sites referred to under Area A – Bircher Coppice, Figure 36 contains all sites referred to under Area B – Bircher Common, and so on. An amalgamated sites location plan can be produced from the single layer that exists within the survey GIS.

- NB. 1. Prefix. ‘HSM’ (Herefordshire SMR) is interchangeable with ‘NTSMR’.
2. Unique numbers refer to records, not ‘sites’ (see note, Volume 1, p.19).
